

Returning to Work: Ideas for Parents

Tips for Returning to Work

Returning to work is an important transition for you and your child and will take some planning. Here are some ways to help you both:

- Carefully choose a child care situation that works for all of you!
 - Before you go back to work, plan to spend some time over a few days with your child and child care provider. That way everyone may feel more comfortable when you are ready to leave for the big day.
 - Prepare your child! Even if the baby is too young to understand your words, he will be reassured by your calm tone of voice. Talk about what will happen, where you will go, who will take care of him, and what will happen while you are gone. Go slowly!
 - This separation may be challenging and your positive outlook will help your baby.
- Keep up those “at home” rituals! Snuggle together for a few minutes before getting dressed, read a book at bedtime, and talk about what happened today.
 - Give your toddler something that he knows is yours to keep with him for the day. He may want to make you a drawing or painting that you can take to work.
 - Ask for help from family and friends when you need it. Even the most confident parent needs some support and assistance.
 - It helps to get organized and to prioritize. Keep it simple. Some chores on your “to do” list can wait another day. Enjoy time with your child.

Our first child care provider was Developed for Healthy StepsSM for Young Children by BUSM[®]: Department of Pediatrics, Boston Medical Center

American Academy of Pediatrics

DEDICATED TO THE HEALTH OF ALL CHILDREN™

The recommendations in this publication do not indicate an exclusive course of treatment or serve as a standard of medical care. Variations, taking into account individual circumstances, may be appropriate. Original document included as part of Bright Futures Tool and Resource Kit. Copyright © 2010 American Academy of Pediatrics. All Rights Reserved. The American Academy of Pediatrics does not review or endorse any modifications made to this document and in no event shall the AAP be liable for any such changes.